Bates (born 11 October 1857, Ranville, Nova Scotia; died November 18, 1909, Louisville, Kentucky) was a Canadian author and playwright. Biography Early years Bates was born on 11 October 1857 in Roaring River, Nova Scotia, the son of Joseph Bates, a railroad contractor and storekeeper, and his wife Esther Montgomery. Bates graduated from the University of Glasgow in 1880. Career Bates is most noted for his play John Halifax, Gentleman, which debuted at Daly's Theatre in New York City on 1 November 1886 and ran for over 500 performances. The play was written in imitation of George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, but unlike Shaw's drama, which was set in Elizabethan times,
